A LAZY MAN.—The lazy man is nearly always good-natured. He never flies into a passion. He might crawl into one, if that were possible, but the idea of his flying into anything is preposterous.

Who ever heard of a lazy man breaking into a bank, where a crowbar had to be used, or drilling into a safe? Nobody. Not that he might not covet his neighbor's goods therein contained, but his horror of handling crowbars and drills, would always deter him from actually committing burglary. He never runs away with his neighbor's wife, simply on account of the horror he has of running. If he is ever known to run it is—run to seed.

He rarely lies about his neighbors, for it would be too much exertion, but he can lie about a bar-room all day.

He is of inestimable service to a billiard saloon, keeping the chairs warm and watching the game, for few would care to play were there no spectators. The fact that he does this without pay, day in and day out, shows the unselfishness of his nature. What an industrious man, who considers his time worth something, would want pay for the lazy man generally does for nothing, showing a freedom, from mercenary motives, that should go far to his credit.

The lazy man never gets up revolutions, insurrections, or other popular excitements, and don't make a nuisance of himself by tramping around the country making incendiary speeches to promote public discontent.

In his own neighborhood he is never a busy-body in other people's affairs, for the very idea of being a busy-body at anything would drive him out of his head. By the way, if he ever got out of his head, you would have to drive him out, for he wouldn't have the energy to go out of his own accord.

No lazy man ever ran mad. If he went crazy it was because he couldn't go anywhere else without walking.

Lazy men don't disturb the quiet of peaceful neighbors by putting up factories, furnaces and such abominations.

Finally, lazy men don't get up baseball clubs, which, if nothing else could be said in their favor, ought, in these days of excessive base-bawling, to entitle them to public gratitude.
